Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-18 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance.

The Examiner agrees with applicant's description of the amended claims over the art of record. Specifically, independent claims 1 and 9 are directed to performing a fine correction of the positional error of a mapping function. Control point structures, each having a plurality of pixels in the image to be rectified and in the reference image, are used, i.e., the corresponding control point structures in the image and in the reference image are used to determine which control point structure is more highly resolved. The less-resolved control point structure is then projected onto the more highly resolved structure. However, it should be noted that the more highly resolved control point structure is not projected onto the less resolved control point structure.

For the projected, less-resolved control point structure and for the more highly resolved control point structure, differences of the gray-scale values of adjacent pixels are calculated and the differences are compared for the two corresponding control point structures. An error value is then determined. By shifting the control point structure in the image or in the reference image and by repeated calculation of the error, a fine position correction can be performed.

Such a fine position correction can be used in accordance with the claimed invention to correct for positional errors in the sub-pixel dimension. As stated previously, the projection is performed from the less-resolved image onto the more highly resolved image. In cases where the projection occurs from the more highly resolved image onto the less-resolved image, information will be lost. Here, information from different pixels would be used to form new pixels. Such a "fusion" of pixels would always cause a loss of information. A projection, however, onto the more highly resolved image does not cause a loss of information, since the control point structure is already in a state of low resolution.

These features of claims 1 and 9 are not disclosed in the art of record.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Jeffrey S. Smith whose telephone number is 571 270-1235. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F.
